G'day Rangers...

Now for something different...A Modern Fable...

There are three types of people in this world: the Sheep who go about their business, the Wolf who feeds on the Sheep, and the Sheepdog who protects the flock.

The analogy has become popular in military and law enforcement circles. The fable is likely the first fictional form in literature. In his introduction to Aesop's Fables, Isaac Singer wrote that the fable created its own philosophy: the character of a being as its fate. The fable, at its core, was essentially pessimistic: the animals depict the traits and actions of the aggressor, the fool, the tyrant, the opportunist, and so on. Grossman heard about this story first from a retired colonel and Vietnam veteran who explained it like this. Society functions because of the many decent and capable individuals who go about their work, doing what they are supposed to be doing. These are the Sheep and there is nothing negative intended with this comparison.

They are good and decent, often incapable of hurting another human being. Sheep dislike the Sheepdog, people in roles such as the police and the military, because their presence is a constant reminder of the Wolf and the evil acts it commits. The Sheepdog has fangs and is capable of violence and, in this way, resembles the Wolf. Bad actors who inflict violence on the Sheep are the greatest enemy of the Sheepdog; they are Wolves in Dogs' clothing. A true Sheepdog will never harm the sheep, because it lives to protect the flock.

Aesop lived over 2500 years ago, and the Wolf shows up often in his fables. Two include the Sheepdog. The fable's great purpose was instruction, a moral lesson, often humorous on the surface; its objective was not only the depiction of human motive but the improvement of human conduct.

Before I close for the month, I would sincerely like to thanks all who attended the AGM last month and for those who nominated for committee positions, additionally, just a reminder that memberships are now due for renewal.

Anyway, that is enough for now, take care of yourself, and those around you – stay safe!

.....to the Other Left!

No this is not a new dance move, but the familiar catch cry of couples' therapy, as navigator guides the driver through the twists and turns of the sand dunes and drop offs of the cliff faces. Providing great entertainment for the audience with many chuckles abound.

Once past the farmhouse, members were greeted with an open campsite catering for caravans, camper trailers and tents. With such luxurious facilities as long drops, outback kitchen and a well-used firepit, and a tantalizing view of the glistening and undulating sand dunes, the scene was set for a great weekend.

Once familiarized with our vehicles, the feel of lower tyre pressures, wider turning circles and greater throttle control on the sand flats, members were provided with a bevy of experience and knowledge on sand recovery strategies, care of Steve, Tom and Glenn.

Members were provided with the opportunity to put these techniques to fruition, as a convoy was led through the numerous bends and trails of the 4x4 park.

After numerous attempts over and around a multitude of trails and tracks, the comradery of the collective group shone through with numerous cheers of encouragement and willingness to embrace new learning. Entertainment was prolific as a range of vehicles battled the trails with drivers maneuvering around cambers never experienced by many before. Confidence was gained in buckets!

PEAKE 22-23rd May 2021

With confidence running high, members embraced the challenge extended to all, encountering with ease, a big dune and earned the right to enjoy an alcoholic beverage. Beer o'clock came and went with shared nibbles and then the serious camp cook-offs began, where members generously shared a range of dampers. Multiple conversations traversed the setting for hours.

As the dialogues became plentiful, many interpretations of tyre pressure readings, temperatures gauges and other useful 4x4 accessories ensued.

As playful banter increased due to the third, fourth and possibly more bebies, members were entertained by the Artist in Residence with "the tairy fale of inderella" composition and then a party collaboration to the cultural song of "Lar...de...dar...dee dum"

With a few weary heads seeking the "local" pop-up coffee caravan trading hours to be extended.....thanks to Rob and Trish and with breakfast filling the stomachs of the brave, a plan was conjured to have a "play amongst the dunes".

In true gritty spirit, the 2 Con's shouted.... "I'm in" - oh not another Jeep joke! Off we sailed amongst the dunes to seek more adventure and led by the trusted skills and experience of Phil and the prowess of tail-end charlie (Rory) another fun, active and safe learning experience was provided.

A tremendous thanks to all for an enjoyable weekend and particularly to Steve, Tom, Glenn, Phil and Rory for their patience, guidance and training that has bolstered many people's belief in safe and fun 4wding.

Lock in your calendar 2022 Peake trip. A most enjoyable event.

Paul and Carolyn Mildrum.

Camp Oven Cleaning & Maintenance

Never wash an oven unless really necessary and never ever use steel wool or a harsh scour. Always clean as soon as possible after use and if you're not going to use it for a while rub a thin film of oil over the inner surface before storing.

When cleaning an oven use newspaper if possible and just keep wiping it out with fresh sheets until clean. This will bring it back to its dull black protective layer without taking it off, then just throw the newspaper into the fire as you go and the washing up is done. If absolutely necessary use warm soapy water and a soft cloth.

Another camp oven cook we know called Tiny, told us a story about his pride and joy. An oven he owned for twenty years and in that time it had never been washed. Well anyway his mate was going camping with the missus one night and he wanted to have a go at cooking a roast in a camp oven and so he borrowed Tiny's oven. He wasn't real keen to lend it but he knew these people would look after it and bring it back.

A couple of days later they brought it back all right, with many thank you's in parting the mate said:

"Oh by the way me an the missus give it a good cleaning for you and I tell you Tiny it was bloody hard work, I ended up getting all that black stuff off though with my angle grinder and now it is good as new".

Then they drove off in a cloud of dust leaving Tiny standing there with mouth gaping in horror at the loss of twenty years of baked dinners. Sure enough when he lifted the lid he found a bright and shiny new metal surface on his oven.

So put your camp oven on the list with your chainsaw and outboard motor of things that never get lent even to your best mate.

Just remember that a camp oven will not wear out from use only from neglect.
